More Early 20th Century Imperialism

- William Taft and Dollar Diplomacy
 - Encourages business in Latin America
 - United Fruit Company — Led US to justify military presence in Latin America
 - This was attempted in China with railroad investments, but failed due to unpopular sentiments
 - Taft was not really an imperialist and disappointed Republicans + Roosevelt
- Woodrow Wilson and Moral Diplomacy
 - 1912 Campaign: New freedom — Moral approach to foreign affairs
 - Not really true in Latin America
 - 1916: Gives Philippines full status, suffrage, and independence when stable government was established
- Intervention in Mexico: Mexican revolution in 1910
 - Woodrow Wilson challenged new leader, Huerta
 - He is replaced by a Pro-American government
 - This new government was challenged by Pancho Villa
- Anti-Imperialist League: Coalition of conservative Democrats (Bourbon Democrats)
 - Had many prominent members: Mark Twain, Andrew Carnegie
 - Jennings Bryan was anti-imperialist, but caused a split in the league due to his other policies
 - The league doesn't gain much influence in government (except Philippines)
